

TOTALLY OPPOSED TO CELLULAR PHONE USAGE ON COMMERCIAL AIRLINES!

I am a frequent flyer using commercial aircraft at least 50+ times per year including both domestic and international destinations. I cannot conceive why FCC is considering relaxing cellular phone usage on commercial aircraft. As a passenger, one is "trapped" in a specified seat without escape. Who needs to listen to a seatmate discussing business and/or personal issues? What about the needs of those passengers who want to rest, sleep and temporarily escape business concerns? This is a BAD idea and one I believe is opposed by the MAJORITY of the flying public!
